

The American Society of Interior Designers has recently awarded Susan El-Naggar, ASID, owner of Healing Environments, first place in the 2014 Design Excellence Awards.

The category "residential project by a small firm" was judged by a panel of distinguished interior design professionals and based on the criteria of excellence in design, function, product specifications, and style. Susan's husband, Tarik El-Naggar, AIA was the architect on the project. Healing Environments is an Architecture & Interior Design firm specializing in project management, space planning, and interior finish selections for residential and commercial projects. "Our goal is to create healthy environments by utilizing cutting-edge materials, technology, and sustainable business practices into each project," says Susan El-Naggar. The focus is on improving the quality of lives through innovative design solutions. For more information, please contact Susan El-Naggar at 219-689-6058. VM

